Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hornes

Dearest Dad and Mama,

Within the covers of this book are memories of the happiest three years of my life thus far, which you have made possible for me.

I hope you shall treasure it always, for I love every word, every page of it.

Thanks for everything! I have put my initials by the things I wrote. Of course Sunshine and I marked on all the articles, but these are mine.

I love you,
Laurie

Foreword

NOT SO VERY LONG AGO, three anticipated years stretched far into the future. These years are now a part of the past. Three years, set apart in our lives in which we have learned the meaning of life and death in its truest sense. Into these golden hours have been poured goodly portions of our strength, our character and our personalities. Out of these hours have come joys and sorrows, achievements and disappointments, which have made us a part of a proud profession.

In this edition of THE LAMP we endeavor to hold forever some memories that are a never-to-be-forgotten part of the past.

Dedication

MISS RUTH CALLOWAY PANNILL, R. N.
*Johnston-Willis Hospital, Richmond, Va. and

TO ONE WHO HAS so skillfully woven into the pattern of our professional and personal lives, bits of her own charm, grace and true love of nursing, we affectionately dedicate this, our issue of THE LAMP.

House Mother, Victoria Courts

WHEN WE gained Victoria Court apartments into our group, the need for another house mother arose. Mrs. Tuttle came to fill that need, which she is doing so well. She helps make both our homes places of sound sleep by night—study and ease.

VICTORIA COURT APARTMENTS

TO THOSE of us who must now look back at the hours spent within these walls, we realize that they were happy ones and we regret to bid them adieu. To the truly great lady, who has made our house a home; who has laughed with us, cried with us and been our "Mother," we say "We love you, Mrs. Stimson."

THERE ARE TIMES in the life of every person when a little lift is needed. We as a class and individuals have been no exception. To these two friends we have often turned—for advice, for consolation, and encouragement. They have never failed us, and we shall endeavor to not fail them in our future lives, both personal and professional.

To them we offer our heartfelt gratitude, our utmost respect, and our love always!

*Fame and fortune one may gain
For flaming battles won
Glorious praises and tributes claim
For valorous, noble things done*

It is not for this we ask . . .

*Only to ease some physical pain
To help cure, if possible, if not, to allay
The torture of all, with no disdain
For any, along our professional way.*

*That unapplauded and unpraised we may
Willingly do a simple deed
To help someone face another day
Or to fulfill some desperate need.*

*That of ourselves and of our skill
We would generously give
To help rekindle or instill
In a comrade, the will to live.*

On Admission

JUST ENTERING THE institution didn't make us nurses. There were classes, before we could exercise our new knowledge or develop our skill.

There were other instructors who nobly did their part, but Miss Pannill and Miss Ray were our first. They gave us the right start, and since, have helped keep us on the right road.

They labored tirelessly to teach us why and how and to instill in us the true conception of nursing which they know.

To them we pay homage . . .

The Lamp . . . 1944

Past History

ON SEPTEMBER 2, 1941, forty excited girls greeted each other at N. C. B. H. We were all here with the same idea and ambition—to become a nurse.

With Miss Edna L. Heinzerling, as Director of Nurses, Miss Ruth Pannill, as head of our education department, and Miss Martha Ray, as Nursing Arts Instructor, we soon got underway with classes, procedures, and adjusting ourselves to the routine of a nurse's life.

Never, I don't believe will the Class of '44 forget their Chemistry and dear Dr. Fishman. We may have been a headache but certainly never a bore! On the morning of our final exam, after most of us had studied all night and still felt dumb, what should we sing in chapel but "Must I Go and Empty Handed?" Funny how all of us felt that the emptiness was in another part of our anatomy—namely the head.

Dr. Sprunt's genuine lectures and the many trips to the Anatomy Lab, were thrilling new discoveries. We still find among our memories the faint trace of formaldehyde and a vision of yellow oil silk. From out those cold stone walls and cold white tables there came four lab instructors—John Avera, John Ausband, Jack Aycock, and P. C. Stringfield, Jr., who worked faithfully that we might know the sternocleidomastionis from the obicularis oris.

The first to leave this busy, but happy, group was Helen Thomas. Sorry that appendix had to act up so soon, Helen.

Carroll, wish you had stayed with us. With your brain and my frame, I'll bet we could have gone places. Hope you're happy with your family, and knowing you, we know you are.

Studies got harder and harder and hours on duty got longer, which only made us more determined to finish the job we had started.

We didn't work quite all the time, there was some skating and there was an accident. Gladys, we're sorry about that arm, and that your recovery took so long. We are firm believers, though, that what is to be will be, and here's hoping it's all for the best.

Melba, may you find happiness in whatever you choose to do. This goes for you, too, Corrine. Violet, may the best be yours always. You were a good nurse, and we miss you very much.

For the first four and one-half months we wore street clothes, and felt very insignificant, but every dog has its day, and at last ours came—the day we actually donned the stiff blue uniforms, white collars, cuffs, hose, and shoes, and little pearl buttons that always popped off at the wrong time.

Be still my heart! The fateful day of January 18, 1942, finally came. One by one we were called from our respective floors to the Nursing Office. There Miss Heinzerling presented our records and told the news of whether or not we could pack our trunks and head for home or stay here and receive the cap of our school. Was there ever thirty happier girls than we on January 30, 1942, when we were capped.

Peggy, you set a record all your own, when you left us to get married. First of the forty! Hope you're happy, Peggy, and thanks again for including so many of us in your wedding.

The first vacation! My, how everyone looked forward to going home! But when we came back, one would have thought we had taken a world cruise instead of just spending fifteen days in some other tarheel town. Believe it or not we were glad to get back and so very happy to see each other.

In the fall we started classes again, and we began our duties as Juniors. Our capes came in November, and we felt that no one had ever had one before.

Junior-Senior banquet is the thrilling event that still is fresh in our memory. We worked both day and night to make it a success, and for all who went, I can truthfully say, we enjoyed it to the fullest. Soft candlelight, sweet music, and the grandeur of the roof garden is enough for anyone, I think, and we had all this and a man for each girl, despite the shortage.

Our class was the first to feel the effects of the new accelerated program, which enables student nurses to complete their training in twenty-four to thirty months. We finished Junior classes in the early spring, then fifteen of the class took Senior courses, while the other half did eight hour duty on the halls, and waited for their classes to begin in the fall.

In September we got our black bands, for now we were Seniors! It was agreed that there never was a more beautiful piece of black material to be found than that narrow velvet ribbon on our caps. Yes, something new had been added.

Now, as the end is drawing near, wedding bells are ringing for a few in the class. On Good Friday, Ann Morgan became the bride of Sgt. Ben Bowling. June and September will see others. May peace and happiness follow you always.

So ends the first chapter in the History of the Class of '44. The remaining ones will be made as individuals—some on the battlefield, some in institutions, some in private duty, some in Public Health, and some in their own little pediatric departments. But wherever or whatever, we shall always cherish the memory of N. C. B. H. May we never bring shame to her name, nor ever be a disappointment to any one of those who have helped us along the way.

Yours the Nitwit,

WILLIE RHODES.

Prognosis

IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL DAY IN MAY, when our ship, the U. S. S. Commander, dropped anchor in New York harbor. I think I can say that it was one of the most thrilling moments of my life, just to know that I was back in the states after doing reconstruction work in Europe for five years. As I walked down the gang-plank I wondered who would be the first person I would see that I had known before I went overseas. I saw two very attractive ladies who looked like they were in their late twenties, rushing to meet someone. I thought they looked familiar and about that time I recognized them as Anne Morgan and Martha Prevost. They were there to meet their husbands. Seeing these two old classmates of mine started me thinking about that evening a little over seven years ago when twenty-nine girls received their diplomas from the North Carolina Baptist Hospital School of Nursing. That was a wonderful evening, and everyone was so happy. I remember the proud face of each parent as they watched with pride, to see their daughter get the thing that she had worked three years to gain. As I thought of these things I wondered what had become of these classmates of mine.

I couldn't rest in my room, so I started out to see what I could find. I had no real purpose in mind but as I walked along the desire to see another civilian hospital grew stronger and stronger. I soon saw a huge building that looked like one, so I started toward it, and sure enough it was Bellevue, the hospital we had heard so much about in nursing school. As I entered, I saw the Nursing Office, and in it a lady whom I judged to be the Superintendent of Nurses. Her back was toward me, but the sound of an opening door made her turn, and who should be facing me but Dorothy Elliott! She looked quite capable of her position as head of the noble old institution. Dot was always the kind of girl who would go places though.

I asked her if I might look around a bit, and of course she was glad to show me. We first went to the operating room where Ruth Blakely was Supervisor and Ruth Etta Leonard was her assistant. Then we went to the Obstetrical Department and there stood Mabel Rodgers, a head nurse. She said that her roommate, Louise Thornbro, is now Pediatric Supervisor at N. C. B. H. As we stood there a nurse and orderly came down the hall with a patient on a stretcher. The nurse was my old roommate, Laura Harbison, the Delivery Room Supervisor. The patient I recognized as the former Louise Hobgood. She was on her way back to her room, and in a minute I knew it was twins, for I saw Evelyn Stephens, now Mrs. Freeman, pushing two baby beds into the nursery. She came out to talk to me and said that her roommate, Helen Sigmon, was now Mrs. Sprinkle, as we all expected, and still lives in Winston-Salem.

From there we went to the surgical wards. We started around a corner and almost bumped into someone rolling a dressing carriage. It was Willie Mae Toms, who had taken special work in Surgery! She was in a hurry, as always, but took time to tell me that her old roommate, Lula Rogers, was Nursery Supervisor in a Los Angeles Obstetrical Hospital. She also said that Bill Rhodes was in Texas doing Public Health. Sidney Feezor really went to the Frontier Nursing Service in Kentucky to take that course in Midwifery and made good. The trick was turned on her, however. She is still in Kentucky with two little boys of her own.

On the Medical floor I learned that Eloise Downs was head nurse but I didn't see her for she had a P.M. and was out of town. I asked about Virginia Church and learned that she and Jessie Caudle were in Oklahoma doing work on an Indian Reservation. Opaline Beamer was out with them but had been sent to Nebraska.

I went back to my room and after dinner settled down to an evening paper. There on the front page was a picture that I recognized as Emily Davis. She was in the group from our hospital that went to Africa as Medical Missionaries. She is married to one of the Doctors now. After reading for awhile, I turned on the radio. It was strange that I would recognize the voice of Elizabeth Jones, after not having heard it for so long. She was giving a lecture, and a very good one, on Child Welfare. Lib was always a good Pediatric nurse.

The next day was Sunday, so I went to church. It was not a large church but one that gave you a feeling of purity and reverence. I had no idea who the pastor was until I saw Phyllis Raburn sitting on the front row. She and Dr. Rowles have made quite a success, and I was glad when they invited me to their home for lunch. Phyllis told about a lot of the others—she always was good at keeping up with the news. She said Bobbie Jones had followed her life's ambition and was a stewardess on the Pan-American Clipper. She told me Georgia Motsinger was in Chicago working for a private doctor and that Nellie Wilkes was in Florida. She married a lawyer soon after graduation and now does volunteer nursing in the Miami City Hospital. Dot Rumble joined the Navy, and is now Chief Nurse in a Naval Hospital in California. Maxine Williams and Vaughn Linville did private duty for awhile before joining the Army. They are still in England but expect to come home soon.

I left the Rowles' home that afternoon glad that I had learned the fate of my classmates. I find that not one of them has failed to make her life happy and to help make the world a better place for others.

MARY ROLLINS HALL.

*On leaving, Dear Baptist,
We're awfully upset,
Our possessions are many—
We want them, and yet—
We can't take them with us,
So to all of you,
With tears in our eyes
And misgivings, we rue
We will our belongings,
Please care for them, too.*

WE, THE SENIOR CLASS of the North Carolina Baptist Hospital School of Nursing, City of Winston-Salem, County of Forsyth, having passed through three long, hard years of struggle, and having in this time, come into possession of a vast collection of abstract and material holdings, being of sound mind and perfect memory, do hereby will and bequeath the following items:

ITEM I

To the Staff, our Superintendent, our esteemed friends, we leave our utmost appreciation and sincere gratitude for the aid they have given.

ITEM II

To the Juniors, the up and coming Seniors of next year we leave our vestige of Senior dignity and privileges.

ITEM III

To the Freshmen and Pre-Clinicals, we leave our good will, for you will be the Seniors of the future.

ITEM IV

"Pea" Raburn grants her love for urological nursing to Gardner.

Bill leaves her expressions and "Hill-William" songs to "Finchie."

Feezor bequeaths her temper and love of basketball to Duncan.

Caudle leaves her posture and ability to understand men to Moore.

Beamer wills her wave-clips to another carot top, Jeanne Williams.

Sunshine's poise, personality, and waistline go to West.

Lulu leaves the record, "Music Makers," to Pruitt, hoping she enjoys "cutting the rug" as much as Lulu does.

Emily leaves her "long handles" and midnight oil to Highsmith and Collison.

"Roommate" wills her bobby pins and shoe polish (she never touches the stuff), to Lawhon and Houser.

"Chicken" leaves her influence with Medical students to Driver and Duckett.

Laura bequeaths her "figger" and gift of gab to Leeper.

Mary grants her good disposition to those "on call."

"Short" wills her "rep" with Supervisors and her energy to Lineback.

Jennie's giggle and all 'round swellness, to Livengood and Stout.

Prevost gives her hair ribbons to Johnson.

Butch Blakely wills her thyroid to the Pathology Lab.

Anne leaves her art of applying make-up to Drake and Polly.

Georgia leaves the horse, Patsy, out at Anderson's stables, for Cam to ride.

Dot Rumble leaves her desserts to Sink and radio mystery serials to anyone who can listen to the gruesome things.

Nellie leaves the Royal Mounties' aim "Get Your Man," to Dot Leach.

Mac leaves her Student Government problems to the next president.

Vaughn leaves her hospital bed to anyone who may have the misfortune of needing it.

R. E. leaves her ease of manner and cheerfulness to Allred.

Louise leaves her love of the Navy to Allen and Hamilton.

Mabel grants her ability to stay awake on night duty to Andrews and Bonnie.

Bobbie leaves her title of "Silly Bee" and her rendition of "Luella" to Barbara Crowell.

Hobbie's bubbling laughter and good nursing care go to Nifong and Benfield.

I, Lib Jones, give my complexion soap and Toddle House "Cheeseburgers" to Helderman.

*And now, we take our seal in hand,
And paste it to the bottom.
Old forty-four will haunt you—
We shall never be forgotten.*

Appreciation

We, the members of the staff of the 1944 issue of THE LAMP, wish to extend our deepest appreciation to the following who have made the difficult task of publishing our annual a lighter load, and in so doing have made it a success:

The Lassiter Press, Charlotte, N. C., especially Mr. Frank Fleming, who supervised our issue. . . . The Kingskraft Company, Cover Designer. . . . Ray Goodrich, Photographer. . . . The Piedmont Engraving Co. . . . Dr. Herbert Hadley, for innumerable snapshots.
